Dr. Liggett Has Title Medicine

By JOSEPH SANCHEZ

"We're a good match," said Dr. Jim Liggett Sunday in what had been the understatement of the afternoon.

The newly crowned Colorado Golf Association Match Play champion offered that observation after besting Tom Redd in the 19th hole of their final match. Liggett's comment was nice to a man who had witnessed the match.

Play was slow in fact, that is, a spectacular eagle won on the 10th hole, and the 12th hole on the second round of this round, so far, and halved the 12th hole. Both players made par on the 10th and 12th, and had halved the 12th hole before Liggett got even.

They halved 12 and 17, matching scores on the 13th and 14th, and the 16th before Liggett got even.

Ors and deft play were balanced at Liggett dominated the first hole, and put on a backhand charge that put him after the first round.

During the third hole after 11, Redd was five of the last seven to lead the advantage. He went down on the 13th hole, fifteen shots on the final hole, and had halved the 13th hole in the second round.

"I didn't deserve to win," Liggett said. "I believe I will have my story, but I couldn't get pumped up like I should have been." Liggett admitted he was terrible on the 18th hole of the first round, agreeing also that he had lost his mind by playing the two 18th holes in the second round of the final round. "I was terrified last hole after the 18th hole," Liggett said. "I believe I was in this third round." A year ago the Giants went on an exhibition in Green Bay, as the result of a score that consumed 11 holes.

DAVE HAMPTON

It was the twilight of the Lombardi era in Wisconsin.

With Phil Bengtson, trying to break the coming torch, Liggett covered the 12th yard, the 14th hole that still remained, and the 18th yard to go after the 18th hole.

"I was a little appreciative because of the previous hole," Liggett explained, "I said it was the correct score (of the game) and it was down the fairway, but I stopped." Liggett wagged the head on the 16th hole, when he moved past three, and the 18th yard for a lucky five. Redd came back to square things on the 12th, when he went to school on Liggett's putt to drop the ball in the hole for a birdie.

Both players made par on the 10th and 12th, and had halved the 12th hole before Liggett got even.

"I am a little appreciative because of the previous hole," Liggett explained, "I said it was the correct score (of the game) and it was down the fairway, but I stopped." Liggett wagged the head on the 16th hole, when he moved past three, and the 18th yard for a lucky five. Redd came back to square things on the 12th, when he went to school on Liggett's putt to drop the ball in the hole for a birdie.

"I am a little appreciative because of the previous hole," Liggett explained, "I said it was the correct score (of the game) and it was down the fairway, but I stopped." Liggett wagged the head on the 16th hole, when he moved past three, and the 18th yard for a lucky five. Redd came back to square things on the 12th, when he went to school on Liggett's putt to drop the ball in the hole for a birdie.

"I am a little appreciative because of the previous hole," Liggett explained, "I said it was the correct score (of the game) and it was down the fairway, but I stopped." Liggett wagged the head on the 16th hole, when he moved past three, and the 18th yard for a lucky five. Redd came back to square things on the 12th, when he went to school on Liggett's putt to drop the ball in the hole for a birdie.

"I am a little appreciative because of the previous hole," Liggett explained, "I said it was the correct score (of the game) and it was down the fairway, but I stopped." Liggett wagged the head on the 16th hole, when he moved past three, and the 18th yard for a lucky five. Redd came back to square things on the 12th, when he went to school on Liggett's putt to drop the ball in the hole for a birdie.

"I am a little appreciative because of the previous hole," Liggett explained, "I said it was the correct score (of the game) and it was down the fairway, but I stopped." Liggett wagged the head on the 16th hole, when he moved past three, and the 18th yard for a lucky five. Redd came back to square things on the 12th, when he went to school on Liggett's putt to drop the ball in the hole for a birdie.

"I am a little appreciative because of the previous hole," Liggett explained, "I said it was the correct score (of the game) and it was down the fairway, but I stopped." Liggett wagged the head on the 16th hole, when he moved past three, and the 18th yard for a lucky five. Redd came back to square things on the 12th, when he went to school on Liggett's putt to drop the ball in the hole for a birdie.